Temporary Commemorations on Federal Land in the District of Columbia

The District of Columbia, especially the area around the National Mall, is widely known for its monuments and memorials. These permanent commemorative works, which are located on federal land, honor the military; arts, science, and culture; American history, symbols, and government; international figures and events; former Presidents; and local history.

Permanent commemorative works (governed by the Commemorative Works Act [CWA; 40 U.S.C. §§8901-8909]) are not the only way that individuals, groups, and events can be commemorated in Washington, DC. In the years since Congress created the CWA, there have been several nonpermanent (temporary) commemorations displayed in Washington, DC, some of them on the National Mall. Temporary commemorations potentially provide an opportunity to honor individuals, groups, and events that might not otherwise be approved for a permanent commemorative work.

Authorizing Temporary Displays
Temporary commemorations on federal land in the District of Columbia can be authorized for display in two ways: a CWA provision that authorizes the Secretary of the Interior (through the National Park Service [NPS]) to create a site to display a temporary commemorative work under certain circumstances; or the NPS event permit process.

CWA Temporary Site Designation
The CWA (40 U.S.C. §8907) allows for the designation of “a site where commemorative works may be displayed on a temporary basis” following a determination by the Secretary of the Interior, in consultation with the National Capital Memorial Advisory Commission (NCMAC), that such a site “is necessary to aid in the preservation of the limited amount of open space available to residents of, and visitors to, the Nation’s Capital.” The Secretary must submit a plan for the site to Congress at least 120 days before the designation. The Department of the Interior (S.Rept. 99-421, p. 10) stated that allowing a temporary site designation “provides a non-structural alternative means of recognizing persons and subjects important to the Nation but which maybe more appropriately located permanently at an area outside of the District of Columbia closely associated with the person or event.”

NPS Permit Process
Most temporary commemorations on federal land in the District of Columbia are displayed on NPS property. As such, the work’s organizer may obtain a permit to display the work under NPS regulations (36 C.F.R. §7.96). Within the National Mall and Memorials Parks Division, NPS reports that it issues permits for more than 4,000 total activities a year. While many of these activities are not commemorative in nature (e.g., first amendment activities, commercial film and photography, concerts, sports events, festivals), others seek to temporarily place artwork or other commemorative elements on NPS land. Interested applicants can submit permits up to one year in advance. For more information on the NPS permitting process, see https://www.nps.gov/nama/planyourvisit/permitsandreservations.htm.

Selected Examples of Past Temporary Commemorations in the District of Columbia
Since the enactment of the CWA in 1986, several temporary commemorations have been displayed in the District of Columbia, many on the National Mall. CRS research indicates that each was likely approved through the NPS permitting process. Some selected examples on a range of subjects include the AIDS Memorial Quilt (1987), the Desert Shield/Desert Storm Victory Celebration (1991), Victims of COVID-19 (2021), and presidential dogs (2022), as well as the planned Beyond Granite artwork installation (2023).

AIDS Memorial Quilt
On October 11, 1987, the AIDS Memorial Quilt made its first appearance on the National Mall. Envisioned as a memorial to individuals who died in the AIDS epidemic, the quilt contained nearly 2,000 panels when it was unveiled in Washington, DC, and covered more ground than a football field. Figure 1 shows the AIDS Memorial Quilt on the Ellipse in 1989, during a subsequent visit to Washington, DC.

Figure 1. AIDS Memorial Quilt

Operation Desert Shield/Desert Storm Victory Celebration
In June 1991, a National Victory Celebration was held in Washington, DC, to honor the Armed Forces that... participated in Operation Desert Shield and Operation Desert Storm. The National Victory Celebration included a parade on Pennsylvania Avenue and a display of military vehicles, helicopters, and fighter jets on the National Mall. Figure 2 shows an AV-88 Harrier II aircraft on the National Mall during the National Victory Celebration.

Figure 2. AV-88 Harrier II During the National Victory Celebration on the National Mall

“In America: Remember” (Victims of COVID-19)
In September 2021, nearly 700,000 white flags, many with handwritten dedications, were placed on the National Mall, one for each American estimated to have lost their life to COVID-19. Artist and creator Suzanne Brennan Firstenberg noted that the temporary memorial was designed to capture “the human dignity of each one of these people who have been compressed and ... reduced to numbers.” Figure 3 shows the “In America: Remember” temporary memorial to the victims of COVID-19.

Figure 3. “In America Remember” (Victims of COVID-19)

President’s Day
Over President’s Day 2022, a dog food company displayed an exhibit of presidential dogs in front of the Lincoln Memorial. The temporary commemoration featured statues of President Abraham Lincoln’s dog, Fido; President John F. Kennedy’s dog, Pushinka; and President Barack Obama’s dog, Bo. Figure 4 shows the three statues in front of the Lincoln Memorial, with the Reflecting Pool and the Washington Monument in the background.

Figure 4. Presidential Dogs

Beyond Granite
The Trust for the National Mall, in partnership with the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC), NPS, and the Mellon Trust, are creating Beyond Granite, described as an opportunity to “invite visionary artists to create special commemorative exhibits, performances, and installations on the National Mall to bring new voices and fresh perspectives to the commemorative landscape” and to “commemorate history, experiences, and stories not currently represented in the commemorative landscape in the Nation’s Capital.” In December 2022, the Beyond Granite team announced six artists who will create “monumental scale artworks” around the National Mall in August 2023. For more information, see https://www.beyondgranite.org.

Congressional Interest and Consideration
Historically, Congress has not been directly involved in temporary commemorations in the District of Columbia, instead delegating the authority to the Department of the Interior and the NPS through the CWA authority and the NPS event regulations. In the future, Congress could begin to authorize temporary commemorations in a way similar to its authorization of permanent memorials under the CWA. Congress could also amend the CWA to further define the role of the Department of the Interior and the NPS, or it could choose to continue the status quo and allow the Secretary and the NPS to permit temporary commemorations on a case-by-case basis.

For more information on the Commemorative Works Act, see CRS Report R41658, Commemorative Works in the District of Columbia: Background and Practice; and CRS In Focus IF11833, Commemorative Works in the District of Columbia: Categorization of Proposed and Enacted Memorials, 1973-2020.

Jacob R. Straus, Specialist on the Congress Temporary Commenorations on Federal Land in the District of Columbia

Disclaimer
This document was prepared by the Congressional Research Service (CRS). CRS serves as nonpartisan shared staff to congressional committees and Members of Congress. It operates solely at the behest of and under the direction of Congress. Information in a CRS Report should not be relied upon for purposes other than public understanding of information that has been provided by CRS to Members of Congress in connection with CRS’s institutional role. CRS Reports, as a work of the United States Government, are not subject to copyright protection in the United States. Any CRS Report may be reproduced and distributed in its entirety without permission from CRS. However, as a CRS Report may include copyrighted images or material from a third party, you may need to obtain the permission of the copyright holder if you wish to copy or otherwise use copyrighted material.