

Congressional Research Service

Informing the legislative debate since 1914

Commemorative Days, Weeks, and Months: Background and Current Practice

Updated June 27, 2019

Congressional Research Service

<https://crsreports.congress.gov>

R44431

CRS REPORT

Prepared for Members and Committees of Congress

Summary

Typically, each Congress, hundreds of legislative measures are introduced to recognize, support, honor, or acknowledge certain days, weeks, and months. Some scholars have observed that commemorative legislation has universal and patriotic appeal and also provides an opportunity to connect directly with constituents, which can help fulfill representational responsibilities to Members' districts or states.

Often used to commemorate an individual, group, or event, these measures can be divided into three categories: (1) federal holidays; (2) patriotic and national observances; and (3) recognition of a specific day, week, or month that commemorates a specific individual, group, or event. To create either a federal holiday or a patriotic or national observance, a law is required. Action to recognize, support, honor, or acknowledge certain days, weeks, and months, however, requires only a simple resolution agreed to by the House or Senate, or a concurrent resolution agreed to by both chambers.

While historically common for Congress to recognize a day, week, or month, this practice has become rarer since the adoption of House Rule XII, clause 5, in the 104th Congress (1995-1996). Since that time, the number of commemorative resolutions introduced and considered in the House has declined. This rule, however, does not apply to the Senate, where date-specific commemorative legislation is still introduced and considered.

Contents

Introduction	1
Commemorative Time Periods	1
Federal Holidays	2
Patriotic and National Observances	2
Recognition or Support of a Commemorative Day, Week, or Month	2
Congressional Rules on Commemorative Legislation	3
House	3
House Rule XII, Clause 5	3
Committee Rules.....	4
Past Waiver of House Rule XII.....	5
Senate	5
Data on Commemorative Legislation.....	5
Options for Congress.....	8
Introduction of House Resolutions.....	9
Senate Action	10
Concluding Observations	10

Figures

Figure 1. Types of Legislation Used to Propose Commemorative Periods	6
Figure 2. Percentage of Introduced Legislation to Commemorate Days, Weeks, and Months, by Chamber	7

Tables

Table 1. Commemorative Legislation Final Status	8
Table A-1. Title 36 Patriotic and National Observances.....	12

Appendices

Appendix. Patriotic and National Observances.....	12
---	----

Contacts

Author Information.....	14
Acknowledgments	14

Introduction

Each Congress, hundreds of measures are introduced to recognize, support, honor, or acknowledge individuals, groups, and events with a national day, week, or month of recognition. As scholars Lawrence Dodd and Scot Schraufnagel observed, “this type of legislation generally has universal appeal with patriotism, altruism, and other worthy concerns … [as] the motivation behind the legislation.”¹ These measures serve as one way that Members of Congress can fulfill their representational responsibilities and connect with their constituents.² This type of legislation can be divided into three categories: federal holidays; patriotic and national observances; and recognition of a specific day, week, or month to commemorate a specific individual, group, or event.

Federal holidays, which are often referred to as “national holidays,” are created by law and are legally only applicable to the federal government and the District of Columbia. Most federal government offices are closed for the day, and many states also acknowledge and participate in the celebration.

Statutory observances, by contrast, which are often called patriotic or national observances, are found codified at 36 U.S.C. §§101-145, and do not provide specific time off for federal employees or the District of Columbia. Currently there are 45 patriotic or national observances. These include days for

- individuals (e.g., Wright Brothers, Leif Erikson, and Stephen Foster);
- groups (e.g., Mother’s Day, and Peace Officers);
- events (e.g., Patriot Day [9/11], Korean War Veterans Armistice Day, and signing the Constitution); and
- other recognitions (e.g., Flag Day, Poison Prevention, and Heart Month).

New statutory observances can only be created by enacting a law.

The other type of commemorative period recognizes a special day, week, or month. Most often these are introduced as a simple resolution (H.Res. or S.Res.) or as a concurrent resolution (H.Con.Res. or S.Con.Res.).

This report provides information on commemorative legislation that recognizes a specific time period, and then it discusses options for Congress. First, the report summarizes the different types of commemorative time periods—federal holidays; patriotic and national observances; and commemorative days, weeks, and months. Second, it discusses the current rules in the House and Senate that govern this type of legislation. Finally, the report discusses options for Congress, including introducing legislation in the House and Senate, and asking the President to issue a proclamation.

Commemorative Time Periods

Permanent commemorative time periods are authorized by law to commemorate groups, individuals, and events. Broadly, these permanent commemorations can be divided into two categories: Federal holidays and patriotic and national observances. Nonpermanent recognitions of commemorative days, weeks, and months may be authorized through the use of simple or concurrent resolutions.

¹ Lawrence C. Dodd and Scot Schraufnagel, “Re-Thinking Legislative Productivity: Commemorative Legislation and Policy Gridlock,” Congress & The Presidency, vol. 36, no. 2 (2009), p. 133.

² Roger H. Davidson, Walter J. Oleszek, Frances E. Lee, and Eric Schickler, Congress and Its Members, 15th edition (Washington: CQ Press, 2016), p. 456.

Federal Holidays

The United States has established 11 permanent federal holidays.³ They are, in the order they appear in the calendar, New Year's Day, Martin Luther King Jr.'s Birthday, Inauguration Day (every four years, following a presidential election), George Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Columbus Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas Day.⁴ Although frequently called public or national days, these celebrations are only legally applicable to the federal government and the District of Columbia, as the states individually decide their own legal holidays.

To create a new federal holiday, a law is required. In recent Congresses, legislation has been introduced that would have created holidays such as "Cesar E. Chavez Day,"⁵ or to formally establish Election Day as a federal holiday.⁶ None of these recent proposals has been adopted.

Patriotic and National Observances

Since 1914, Congress has authorized 45 patriotic and national observances. Codified in Title 36, United States Code, these patriotic and national observances include days for individuals,⁷ groups,⁸ events,⁹ and other commemorations.¹⁰

New patriotic and national observances can only be created statutorily. In recent Congresses, for example, legislation has been introduced to designate March 29 as Vietnam Veterans Day to honor and recognize "the contributions of veterans who served in the United States Armed Forces in Vietnam during war and during peace."¹¹

For a complete list of patriotic and national observances, see the Appendix.

Recognition or Support of a Commemorative Day, Week, or Month

In addition to statutory federal holidays and patriotic and national observances, Congress has historically considered legislation that recognizes, supports, honors, or acknowledges certain ³ For more information on federal holidays, see CRS Report R41990, Federal Holidays: Evolution and Current Practices, by Jacob R. Straus.

⁴ 5 U.S.C. §6103(a).

⁵ For example, see H.J.Res. 356 (103rd Congress).

⁶ For an example, see H.R. 62 (107th Congress), which would have amended Title 5, United States Code, "to establish election day in Presidential election years as a legal public holiday...."

⁷ Patriotic and national observances that celebrate individuals include, for example, the Wright Brothers (§143), Leif Erikson (§114), and Stephen Foster (§140).

⁸ Observances that celebrate groups include, for example, Mother's Day (§117) and Peace Officers (§136).

⁹ Observances that celebrate events include, for example, Patriot Day [9/11] (§144), Korean War Veterans Armistice Day (§127), and the signing the Constitution (§106 and §108).

¹⁰ Observances that celebrate items include, for example, Flag Day (§110), Poison Prevention Week (§130), and Heart Month (§101).

¹¹ S. 409 (113th Congress), introduced February 28, 2013.

days, weeks, and months. For example, in the 116th Congress, the Senate agreed to a resolution “designating the week of May 12 through May 18, 2019 as ‘National Police Week.’”¹²

Usually introduced as a simple resolution (H.Res. or S.Res.), these commemorative measures provide recognition by one congressional chamber of individuals, groups, and events without creating a new federal holiday or permanent patriotic and national observance.¹³

Congressional Rules on Commemorative Legislation

For the House, rules ban the introduction and consideration of date-specific commemorative legislation. In the Senate, no specific chamber rules exist on either the introduction or consideration of commemorative measures.

House

In the 104th Congress (1995-1996), the House adopted a new standing rule to reduce the number of commemorative bills and resolutions introduced and considered by the chamber. House Rule XII, clause 5, prohibits the introduction and consideration of date-specific commemorative legislation. In addition, the House Majority Leader’s Legislative Protocols provide additional guidance to the majority leader when scheduling commemorative legislation. These protocols currently prohibit the majority leader from scheduling such legislation.¹⁴

House Rule XII, Clause 5

As part of the rules adopted by the 104th Congress,¹⁵ House Rule XII was amended to preclude the introduction or consideration of any bill, resolution, or amendment that “establishes or expresses any commemoration.” The rule, which has been readopted each Congress since 1995,¹⁶ defines a commemoration as any “remembrance, celebration, or recognition for any purpose through the designation of a specified period of time.” Further, in the House Rules Committee’s section-by-section analysis of the House Rules resolution (H.Res. 6) in the 104th Congress, the following explanation was provided on the rule’s intent:

The new ban on date-specific commemorative measures or amendments applies to both the introduction and consideration of any measure containing such a commemorative. This is intended to include measures in which such a commemorative may only be incidental to the overall purpose of the measure. Such measures will be returned to the sponsor if they are dropped in the legislative hopper. The prohibition against consideration also extends to any measures received from the Senate which contain date-specific commemorative [sic]. While it does not block their receipt from the other body, it is intended that such measures would not be referred to the appropriate committee of the House or be considered by the House. Instead, they would simply be held at the desk without further action. Should such ¹² S.Res. 209 (116th Congress), agreed to May 14, 2019.

¹³ Simple resolutions can only be considered in the chamber in which they were introduced. Therefore, the Senate cannot act on a House resolution (H.Res.) and the House cannot act on a Senate resolution (S.Res.).

¹⁴ U.S. Congress, House, Office of Majority Leader Steny Hoyer, “116th Congress Legislative Protocols,” at <https://www.majorityleader.gov/content/116th-congress-legislative-protocol>.

¹⁵ “Ban on Commemoratives,” Congressional Record, daily edition, vol. 141 (January 4, 1995), pp. H29-H30.

¹⁶ H.Res. 6 (116th Congress), agreed to January 3, 2019.

a commemorative be included in a conference report or Senate amendment to a House bill, the entire conference report or Senate amendment would be subject to a point of order.

While the ban does not apply to commemorative [sic] which do not set aside a specified period of time, and instead simply call for some form of national recognition, it is not the intent of the rule that such alternative forms should become a new outlet for the consideration of such measures. Thus, while they could be referred to an appropriate committee, it is not expected that such committees should feel obligated or pressured to establish special rules for their release to the House floor. Nor should it be expected that the Rule [sic] Committee should become the new avenue for regular waivers of the rule against date specific commemorative [sic]. Such exceptions should be limited to those rare situations warranting special national recognition as determined by the Leadership.¹⁷

From the 104th to the 109th and the 112th to the 115th Congresses, the Republican Party held the majority of seats in the House. During this time, consideration of commemorative legislation was also effectively governed by a rule of the House Republican Conference. Conference Rule 28(a)(6) generally prohibited the Republican leader from scheduling certain commemorative bills and resolutions for floor consideration under suspension of the rules.¹⁸ While party rules are not enforceable by points of order on the House floor, the rule arguably reflected a reluctance on the part of the majority party during this period to schedule any legislation with commemorative intent.¹⁹ The Democratic Party, which holds the majority of seats in the 116th Congress and therefore is responsible for scheduling floor action, has instituted similar protocols for the scheduling of commemorative legislation. The majority leader's protocols for the 116th Congress state that the Majority Leader shall not schedule any bill or resolution for consideration that expresses appreciation, commends, congratulates, celebrates, recognizes the accomplishments of, or celebrates the anniversary of, an entity, event, group, individual, institution, team or government program; or acknowledges or recognizes a period of time.²⁰

Committee Rules

In addition, the House Committee on Oversight and Reform (which has jurisdiction over holidays and celebrations) has a committee rule that addresses commemorative legislation. Rule 13(c) states

(c) Resolutions. The Chair of the Committee shall not request to have scheduled any resolution for consideration under suspension of the Rules, which expresses appreciation,

¹⁷ “Rules of the House,” Congressional Record, vol. 141, part 1 (January 4, 1995), p. 476.

¹⁸ U.S. Congress, House Republican Conference, “Conference Rules,” 115th Congress. The Republican Conference rules for the 115th Congress are no longer found on the Internet, but the text of Conference Rule 28(a)(6) (115th Congress) is the same as the text of Conference Rule 29(a)(6) in the 116th Congress. See, U.S. Congress, House Republican Conference, “Conference Rules,” 116th Congress, at <https://www.gop.gov/conference-rules-of-the-116th-congress>.

¹⁹ While in the majority, the House Republicans also issued leadership protocols “intended to guide the majority leadership in the scheduling and consideration of legislation on the House floor,” indicating that a “resolution of bereavement, or condemnation, or which calls on others (such as a foreign government) to take a particular action, but which does not otherwise violate the provisions of [Republican Conference] Rule 28 is eligible to be scheduled under suspension of the Rules.” For those leadership protocols, issued November 1, 2016, see “Floor Protocols” at <https://www.republicanleader.gov/protocols/>. Current majority leader protocols for the 116th Congress also include language that states that “A resolution of bereavement, or condemnation, or which calls on others to take a particular action, is eligible to be scheduled for consideration.” See, U.S. Congress, House, Majority Leader Steny Hoyer, “116th Congress Legislative Protocols,” at <https://www.majorityleader.gov/content/116th-congress-legislative-protocols>.

²⁰ “116th Congress Legislative Protocols.”

commends, congratulates, celebrates, recognizes the accomplishments of, or celebrates the anniversary of, an entity, event, group, individual, institution, team or government program; or acknowledges or recognizes a period of time for such purposes.²¹

Past Waiver of House Rule XII

Since House Rule XII, clause 5, was adopted in the 104th Congress, it has been explicitly waived on at least one occasion. Specifically, the “House by unanimous consent waived the prohibition against introduction of a certain joint resolution specified by sponsor and title proposing a commemoration”²² to allow for the consideration of H.J.Res. 71 (107th Congress), legislation establishing Patriot Day as a day of remembrance for September 11, 2001.²³

Senate

Unlike in the House, no Senate rules exist that would prohibit the introduction or consideration of commemorative measures. In the past, the Senate Judiciary Committee has had unpublished guidelines on the consideration of commemorative legislation. These guidelines were not officially part of the committee’s rules. Past guidance restricted consideration of commemorative legislation without a minimum number of bipartisan cosponsors, and prohibited commemoration of specific categories.²⁴

Data on Commemorative Legislation

While the House prohibits the introduction and consideration of date-specific commemorative legislation, House resolutions to achieve a similar purpose continue to be introduced. These resolutions generally do not include a specific time period after the resolution’s resolving clause.²⁵ Consequently, the introduction of such a measure does not appear to violate House Rule XII, clause 5. Data on all measures used to propose recognition of a commemorative period were collected for the 113th, 114th, and 115th Congresses. A total of 1,570 commemorative measures were identified, 437 in the 113th Congress, 478 in the 114th Congress, and 655 in the 115th Congress. Figure 1 shows the types of legislation used to introduce commemorative recognitions in the House, and also in the Senate (where no rules regarding the introduction of commemorative resolutions exist), during the 113th, 114th, and 115th Congresses.

²¹ U.S. Congress, House Committee on Oversight and Reform, “Committee on Oversight Rules,” 116th Congress, at <https://oversight.house.gov/sites/democrats.oversight.house.gov/files/COR%20Rules%20-%20passed.pdf>.

²² U.S. Congress, House, Constitution, Jefferson’s Manual, and Rules of the House of Representatives of the United States, One Hundred Fifteenth Congress, prepared by Thomas J. Wickham, parliamentarian, 114th Cong., 2nd sess., H.Doc. 114-192 (Washington: GPO, 2017), §823.

²³ “Authorizing Introduction of Joint Resolution Designating September 11 as United We Stand Remembrance Day,” Congressional Record, daily edition, vol. 147 (October 24, 2001), p. H.7300; and “Making in Order on Thursday, October 25, 2001, Consideration of Joint Resolution Designating September 11 as United We Stand Remembrance Day,” Congressional Record, daily edition, vol. 147 (October 24, 2001), p. H7300.

²⁴ U.S. Congress, Senate Committee on the Judiciary, “Committee Policy for the Consideration of Commemorative Measures: 106th Congress (unpublished).” Categories for which the committee did not consider requests for commemorations included a commercial enterprise, industry, or specific product, or a fraternal, political, business, labor, or sectarian organization; a particular state or any political subdivision of a state, city, town, county, school, or institution of higher learning; or a living person.

²⁵ The resolving clause is the opening language of a resolution, beginning “Resolved, That the House of Representatives [Senate] ... ” For more information, see Walter Kravitz, Congressional Quarterly’s American Congressional Dictionary, 3rd ed. (Washington: CQ Press, 2001), pp. 89, 217-218.

Figure 1. Types of Legislation Used to Propose Commemorative Periods
113th-115th Congresses (2013-2018)

Source: CRS analysis of commemorative legislation in the 113th, 114th, and 115th Congresses using Congress.gov.

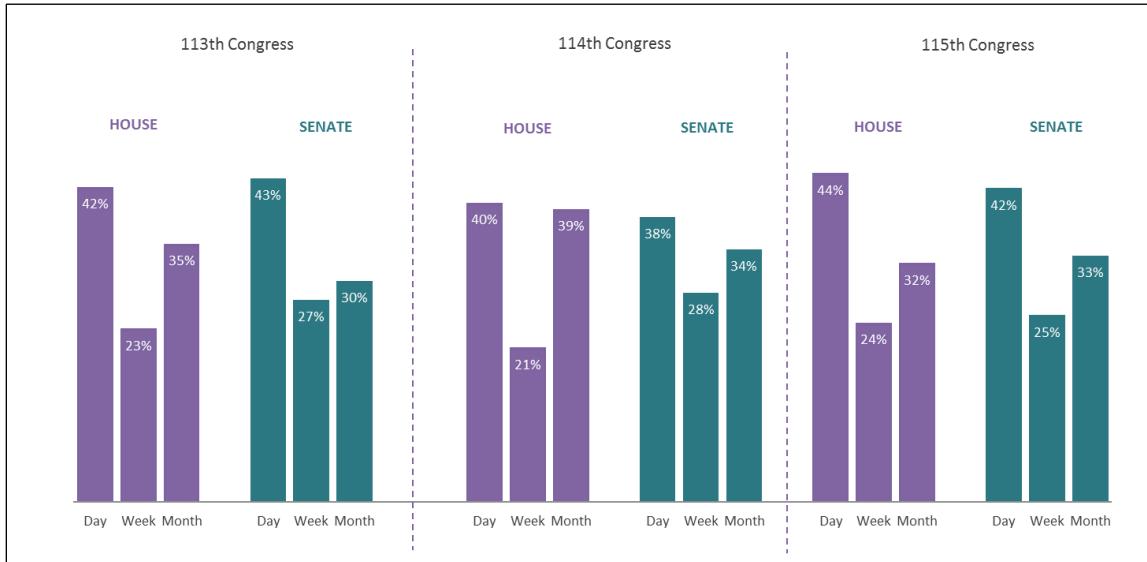

Notes: “Other” includes the introduction of lawmaking vehicles—Joint Resolutions and Bills. In the 113th Congress, there was one House Joint Resolution (H.J.Res.), two Senate Joint Resolutions (S.J.Res.), and three bills (H.R. or S.) introduced. In the 114th Congress, there were two House Joint Resolutions and two bills introduced. In the 115th Congress, there were two House Joint Resolutions and three bills introduced.

As Figure 1 shows, the majority of commemorative measures were introduced as simple resolutions (95%) over the three Congresses. A small number are measures that would need both House and Senate approval. These include concurrent resolutions (approximately 4% in each Congress)—which do not require presidential action—or bills and joint resolutions (less than 1% in each Congress). By using a simple resolution to designate a commemorative day, week, or month, only one chamber—either the House or Senate—can agree to the measure. A simple resolution, however, does not carry the force of law and can only be used by one chamber to recognize, support, honor, or acknowledge a specific day, week, or month.

Of the commemorative legislation introduced in the 113th, 114th, and 115th Congresses, approximately 40% of all measures would recognize a commemorative day. This compares with approximately 25% for a commemorative week, and approximately 30% for a commemorative month. Additionally, a small percentage of legislation (3%) would designate two time periods. For example, H.Res. 407 (113th Congress) would “support the goals and ideals of National Adoption Day and National Adoption Month.”²⁶ A measure that would designate two time periods is counted twice in the data. Figure 2 shows the percentage of measures introduced that recognize a day, week, or month.

²⁶ H.Res. 407 (113th Congress), introduced November 12, 2013.

Figure 2. Percentage of Introduced Legislation to Commemorate Days, Weeks, and Months, by Chamber
113th-115th Congresses (2013-2018)

Source: CRS analysis of commemorative legislation in the 113th, 114th, and 115th Congresses.

In the 113th, 114th, and 115th Congresses, 1,570 commemorative measures were introduced, 758 in the House and 812 in the Senate. Of these measures, 640 of 797 (80%) Senate simple resolutions (S.Res.) were agreed to, with another two reported by Senate committees. Additionally, the Senate agreed to two Senate concurrent resolutions (S.Con.Res.) and two bills (S.).

In the House, one measure (H.Res. 842 [114th Congress]) was agreed to.²⁷ All other House measures (701 simple resolutions [H.Res.], 48 concurrent resolutions [H.Con.Res.], 5 joint resolutions [H.J.Res.], and 3 bills [H.R.]) that were introduced were referred to committee, but none were agreed to. Table 1 shows the final disposition within the chamber of introduced commemorative measures in the 113th, 114th, and 115th Congresses.

²⁷ H.Res. 842 (114th Congress), was agreed to on September 9, 2016. The resolution expressed the sense of the House that September 11 should be recognized as a day of solemn commemoration and extends “deepest sympathies to the innocent victims of the September 11, 2001” attacks. The resolution was considered following a unanimous consent request by the House Majority Leader to discharge the committee from consideration and consider it on the floor. The resolution was agreed to by voice vote. “Expressing the Sense of the House of Representatives Regarding the Terrorist Attacks Launched Against the United States on September 11, 2001, on the 15th Anniversary of that Date,” Congressional Record, daily edition (September 9, 2016), pp. H5229-H5230.

Table 1. Commemorative Legislation Final Status
113th-115th Congresses (2013-2018)

Final Status	Senate Measures			House Measures
	113 th Congress	114 th Congress	115 th Congress	113 th Congress	114 th Congress	115 th Congress
Referred to Committee (No Further Action)	38	39	89	204	228	325
Reported by Committee (No Further Action)	2	0	0	0	0	0
Agreed to	193	210	241	0	1	0
Total	233	249	330	204	229	325

Source: CRS analysis of commemorative legislation in the 113th, 114th, and 115th Congresses.

Table 1 indicates that 83.6% of the Senate’s measures and none of the House’s measures were agreed to by the chamber of origin in the 113th Congress, 85% of the Senate’s measures and one of the House’s measures were agreed to in the 114th Congress, and 73% of the Senate’s measures and none of the House’s measures were agreed to in the 115th Congress. As discussed above under “Congressional Rules on Commemorative Legislation,” House and Senate rules for the consideration of date-specific commemorative legislation differ considerably. While the Senate allows such measures to be introduced and considered, the House has a rule that prohibits both the introduction and consideration of date-specific commemorative measures. Consequently, while no prohibition exists in the Senate, measures with date-specific provisions cannot be introduced in the House, but measures without date-specific provisions apparently can. Whether or not non-date-specific measures are considered in the future will likely be determined by scheduling practices of the House majority leader, which can be guided by party conference rules and legislative protocols, as discussed earlier.²⁸

Options for Congress

When Members of Congress engage in the legislative process, they do so for a variety of purposes.²⁹ In some cases, just the introduction of legislation achieves the Member’s purpose, while in other cases the Member’s purpose can only be achieved by the approval of a measure they have introduced. For example, the introduction of legislation may indicate that a Member would like to be involved in future public policy discussions in a particular area, or that he or she is attempting to frame the debate on a particular policy issue.³⁰

In general, there are three stages where a Member might achieve his or her goal: the introduction of legislation, the consideration of a measure in the House or Senate, or passage of a measure by the House, Senate, or both. Should Congress want to commemorate a day, week, or month, several options might be available that might allow a Member to meet his or her goal within the confines of House or Senate rules. These include the introduction of a House measure or the introduction (and possible consideration) of a Senate measure.

²⁸ U.S. Congress, House, Majority Leader Steny Hoyer, “116th Congress Legislative Protocols,” at <https://www.majorityleader.gov/content/116th-congress-legislative-protocols>.

²⁹ Davidson, Oleszek, Lee, and Schickler, Congress and Its Members, p. 206. Additionally, Members might take credit for their measures as it moves through the legislative process.

³⁰ Richard F. Fenno, Senators on the Campaign Trail (Norman, OK: University of Oklahoma Press, 1996), pp. 245-259.

Introduction of House Resolutions

Though House Rule XII, clause 5, prohibits the introduction or consideration of date-specific commemorative legislation, hundreds of commemorative resolutions that would honor a day, week, or month are introduced each Congress. None of these resolutions, however, has been considered by either a House committee or on the House floor in recent decades.

Through an analysis of introduced resolutions, it appears they share a common trait: the lack of a specific date or time period after the resolving clause. Without a specific date or time period after the resolving clause, it appears that commemorative resolutions that support the recognition of a specific day, week, or month can be introduced. In these cases, the specific commemorative date is listed in the resolution's "whereas" clauses.³¹ For example, in the 113th Congress, H.Res. 194 was introduced to express "support for designation of the month of May as Williams Syndrome Awareness Month."³² The text of the resolution reads:

H.Res. 194 (113th Congress)

RESOLUTION

Expressing support for designation of the month of May as Williams Syndrome Awareness Month.

Whereas Williams syndrome is a rare genetic condition that is present at birth, affects as many as 30,000 individuals in the United States and is characterized by lifelong medical problems, including cardiovascular disease, developmental delays, and learning disabilities;

Whereas more than 5,000 individuals have signed a petition requesting that Congress support the Williams Syndrome Association's efforts to designate May as Williams Syndrome Awareness Month;

Whereas the Williams Syndrome Association (WSA), founded in 1982, is a non-profit organization and the most comprehensive resource for people and families living with Williams syndrome as well as for doctors, researchers and educators. And through its efforts, from raising public awareness, to funding critical new research, and providing valuable information and support to families, the WSA has improved the quality of life and futures of those affected by Williams syndrome;

Whereas to generate awareness about Williams syndrome and raise funding for critical WSA programs and initiatives, the WSA has organized May as Williams Syndrome Awareness Month which includes 'Walks for Williams' and other events all across the United States; and

Whereas the Williams Syndrome Association and the families and friends of those with Williams should be commended for their hard work, compassion, and courage for educating the country about this rare disorder: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives supports the goals and ideals of Williams Syndrome Awareness Month.

H.Res. 194 was introduced without language that would apparently be prohibited by House Rule XII, clause 5. While introduction was likely allowed because the resolution specified a date only in the "whereas clauses," scheduling the measure under suspension proceedings was still likely circumscribed by Republican Conference Rule 28, clause 6, which at the time guided the majority leader on the scheduling of legislation for floor consideration.

³¹ "Whereas" clauses, which are also called preambles, are "introductory language describing the reasons for and intent of a measure." For more information, see Kravitz, Congressional Quarterly's American Congressional Dictionary, p. 182.

³² H.Res. 194 (113th Congress), introduced April 26, 2013.

Senate Action

Currently, the Senate does not have any chamber-wide restriction on the introduction or scheduling of date-specific commemorative legislation. Therefore, Senate resolutions can contain a specific date in the text following the resolving clause (although this is not a requirement).³³ For example, S.Res. 131 (112th Congress) designated April 2011, as “Tsunami Awareness Month.”³⁴ The text of the resolution read:

S.Res. 131 (112th Congress)

RESOLUTION

Designating April 2011 as ‘Tsunami Awareness Month.’

Whereas a tsunami is a series of ocean or sea waves generated by a sea floor disturbance, such as an earthquake, landslide, volcanic eruption, or meteorite;

Whereas a tsunami could occur during any season and at any time;

Whereas a tsunami is a threat to life and property for all coastal communities, and tsunamis have caused serious injuries and millions of dollars in property damage in the United States;

Whereas the danger posed by a tsunami cannot be eliminated, but the impact of a tsunami can be mitigated through community preparedness, timely warnings, and effective response;

Whereas tsunamis historically have posed the greatest hazard to Hawaii, Alaska, California, Oregon, Washington, American Samoa, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, tsunamis also pose risks to all ocean coasts of the United States;

Whereas Federal, State, and local officials have partnered to coordinate a national effort to reduce the impact of tsunamis through the National Tsunami Hazard Mitigation Program;

Whereas the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's National Weather Service operates 2 tsunami warning centers, the Pacific Tsunami Warning Center and the West Coast and Alaska Tsunami Warning Center, that detect potential tsunamis and issue warnings;

Whereas Tsunami Awareness Month provides an opportunity to highlight the importance of tsunami preparedness and to encourage the people of the United States to take steps to be better prepared for tsunamis at home, work, and school;

Whereas the people of the United States can prepare for tsunamis by finding out if their home, school, workplace or other frequently visited locations are in tsunami hazard areas, and by identifying evacuation routes; and

Whereas additional information about tsunami preparedness may be obtained through TsunamiReady at National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, at www.tsunamiready.noaa.gov: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates April 2011 as ‘Tsunami Awareness Month’; and

(2) encourages the Federal Government, States, localities, schools, nonprofit organizations, businesses, and other applicable entities, along with the people of the United States, to observe Tsunami Awareness Month with appropriate events and activities to promote tsunami preparedness.

Concluding Observations

Legislation that recognizes, supports, honors, or acknowledges certain days, weeks, and months continues to be introduced each Congress. Based on the quantity of measures offered in both chambers, Members of Congress clearly see value in introducing commemorative legislation. While these measures generally may not be considered in the House, Members clearly desire ways to recognize commemorative days, weeks, and months to establish connections with their district and state.³⁵ The desire to recognize commemoration days, weeks, and months may explain why House Members draft their resolutions to allow for introduction, even though it seems that the intent of the prohibition (reinforced by House party rules and/or majority party protocols) will likely preclude any further action on such resolutions.

³³ For an example of a Senate resolution that does not include a specific date after the resolving clause, see S.Res. 79 (113th Congress), agreed to March 18, 2013.

³⁴ S.Res. 131 (112th Congress), agreed to April 5, 2011.

³⁵ Roger H. Davidson, “The New Centralization on Capitol Hill,” Review of Politics vol. 50, no. 3 (Summer 1988), p. 354.

Appendix. Patriotic and National Observances

Table A-1. Title 36 Patriotic and National Observances

Listed in Order of Enactment

Commemoration	Date of Enactment	Bill Number/Statute	Section of Title 36	Currently Designated Date(s)
Mother's Day	5/8/1914	63 rd H.J. Res. 263, 38 Stat. 770	117	Second Sunday in May
Child Health Day	5/18/1928	70 th H.J. Res. 184, 45 Stat. 617	105	First Monday in October
National Maritime Day	5/20/1933	73 rd S.J. Res. 50, 48 Stat. 73	128	May 22 nd
Columbus Day	4/30/1934	73 rd H.J. Res. 10, 48 Stat. 657	107	Second Monday in October
Gold Star Mother's Day	6/23/1936	74 th S.J. Res. 115, 49 Stat. 1895	111	Last Sunday in September
Thomas Jefferson's Birthday	8/16/1937	75 th H.J. Res. 284, 50 Stat. 668	141	April 13 th
Cancer Control Month	3/28/1938	75 th H.J. Res. 468, 52 Stat. 148	103	Month of April
National Aviation Day	5/11/1939	76 th S.J. 111, 53 Stat. 739	118	August 19 th
Pan American Aviation Day	10/10/1940	76 th S.J. Res. 293, 54 Stat. 1093	134	December 17 th
National Disability Employment Awareness Month	8/11/1945	79 th H.J. Res. 23, 59 Stat. 530	121	Month of October
National Freedom Day	6/30/1948	P.L. 80-842, 62 Stat. 1150	124	February 1 st
Flag Day	8/3/1949	P.L. 81-203, 63 Stat. 492	110	June 14 th
Memorial Day	5/11/1950	P.L. 81-512, 64 Stat. 158	116	Last Monday in May
Stephen Foster Memorial Day	10/27/1951	P.L. 82-225, 65 Stat. 659	140	January 13 th
Constitution Day and Citizenship Day	2/29/1952	P.L. 82-261, 66 Stat. 9	106	September 17 th
National Day of Prayer	4/17/1952	P.L. 82-324, 66 Stat. 64	119	First Thursday in May
Constitution Week	8/2/1956	P.L. 84-915, 70 Stat. 932	108	September 17 th -September 23 rd
National Defense Transportation Day	5/16/1957	P.L. 85-32, 71 Stat. 30	120	Third Friday in May
National Safe Boating Week	6/4/1958	P.L. 85-445, 72 Stat. 179	131	Week ending on the last Friday before Memorial Day

Commemoration	Date of Enactment	Bill Number/Statute	Section of Title 36	Currently Designated Date(s)
Loyalty Day	7/18/1958	P.L. 85-529, 72 Stat. 369	115	May 1 st
National Forest Products Week	9/13/1960	P.L. 86-753, 74 Stat. 898	123	Third Sunday in October
Law Day, USA	4/7/1961	P.L. 87-20, 75 Stat. 43	113	May 1 st
National Poison Prevention Week	9/26/1961	P.L. 87-319, 75 Stat. 681	130	Third week in March
National Transportation Week	5/14/1962	P.L. 87-449, 76 Stat. 69	133	Week that includes the third Friday of May
Peace Officers Memorial Day	10/1/1962	P.L. 87-726, 76 Stat. 676	136	May 15 th
Police Week	10/1/1962	P.L. 87-726, 76 Stat. 676	137	Week in which May 15 th occurs
National School Lunch Week	10/9/1962	P.L. 87-780, 76 Stat. 779	132	Week beginning on the second Sunday in October
Wright Brothers Day	12/17/1963	P.L. 88-209, 77 Stat. 402	143	December 17 th
Save Your Vision Week	12/30/1963	P.L. 88-242, 77 Stat. 629	138	First week in March
American Heart Month	12/30/1963	P.L. 88-255, 77 Stat. 843	101	Month of February
Leif Erikson Day	9/2/1964	P.L. 88-566, 78 Stat. 849	114	October 9 th
White Cane Safety Day	10/6/1964	P.L. 88-628, 78 Stat. 1003	142	October 15 th
National Flag Week	6/9/1966	P.L. 89-443, 80 Stat. 194	122	Week in which June 14 th occurs
Steelmark Month	11/2/1966	P.L. 89-703, 80 Stat. 1099	139	Month of May
National Hispanic Heritage Month	9/17/1968	P.L. 90-498, 82 Stat. 848	126	September 15 th through October 15 th
Father's Day	4/24/1972	P.L. 92-278, 86 Stat. 124	109	Third Sunday in June
Honor America Days	6/13/1975	P.L. 94-33, 89 Stat. 211	112	The 21 days from Flag Day through Independence Day
National Grandparents Day	9/6/1979	P.L. 96-62, 93 Stat. 410	125	First Sunday in September after Labor Day
Carl Garner Federal Lands Cleanup Day	8/27/1986	P.L. 99-402, 100 Stat. 910	104	First Saturday after Labor Day
Asian/Pacific American Heritage Month	10/23/1992	P.L. 102-450, 106 Stat. 2251	102	Month of May

National Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day	8/23/1994	P.L. 103-308, 108 Stat. 1669	129	December 7 th
Parents' Day	10/14/1994	P.L. 103-362, 108 Stat. 3465	135	Fourth Sunday in July
National Korean War Veterans Armistice Day	7/27/1995	P.L. 104-19, 109 Stat. 247	127	July 27 th
Patriot Day	12/18/2001	P.L. 107-89, 115 Stat. 877	144	September 11 th
Veterans Day Moment of Silence	10/7/2016	P.L. 114-240 130 Stat. 974	145	Veterans Day

Source: Compiled by CRS using the Statutes at Large and the U.S. Code.

- a. The legislation authorizing National Korean War Veterans Armistice Day provides that “July 23 of each year until 2003 is National Korean War Veterans Armistice Day.”

Author Information

Jacob R. Straus
Specialist on the Congress

Jared C. Nagel
Senior Research Librarian

Acknowledgments

Amber Wilhelm, visual information specialist, designed the graphics for this report. Ben Leubsdorf, intern, assisted with data collection and analysis of commemorative legislation in the 115th Congress.

Disclaimer

This document was prepared by the Congressional Research Service (CRS). CRS serves as nonpartisan shared staff to congressional committees and Members of Congress. It operates solely at the behest of and under the direction of Congress. Information in a CRS Report should not be relied upon for purposes other than public understanding of information that has been provided by CRS to Members of Congress in connection with CRS’s institutional role. CRS Reports, as a work of the United States Government, are not subject to copyright protection in the United States. Any CRS Report may be reproduced and distributed in its entirety without permission from CRS. However, as a CRS Report may include copyrighted images or material from a third party, you may need to obtain the permission of the copyright holder if you wish to copy or otherwise use copyrighted material.