Expired and Expiring Tax Provisions ("Tax Extenders"): CRS Resources

October 16, 2019

Congressional Research Service

<https://crsreports.congress.gov>

R45967

Some Members of Congress have expressed interest in extending temporary tax provisions that expired at the end of 2017 and 2018, and possibly extending provisions scheduled to expire at the end of 2019. Collectively, temporary tax provisions that are regularly extended as a group by Congress, rather than being allowed to expire as scheduled, are often referred to as “tax extenders.”

Temporary tax provisions were most recently extended in the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2018 (BBA18; P.L. 115-123). BBA18 extended nearly all of the provisions that had expired at the end of 2016, with most provisions extended through the end of 2017. For more information on the “tax extenders” concept as well as additional information on provisions that expired at the end of 2017, see CRS Report R45347, Tax Provisions That Expired in 2017 (“Tax Extenders”), by Molly F. Sherlock.

CRS Resources

This report highlights CRS resources that provide background information on recently expired and soon-to-expire tax provisions. Table 1 lists temporary tax provisions that expired in 2017, and provides information on CRS reports and other products related to each provision.<sup>1</sup> Table 2 provides the same information for temporary tax provisions that expired in 2018, while Table 3 provides this information for provisions that are scheduled to expire at the end of 2019. These tables also indicate whether each provision would be extended by the Tax Extender and Disaster Relief Act of 2019 (S. 617) or the Taxpayer Certainty and Disaster Tax Relief Act of 2019 (H.R. 3301)—“tax extender” bills pending, respectively, in the Senate and House.

Proposed extensions would be retroactive. Thus, taxpayers may be able to amend 2018 tax returns to claim tax benefits that had not previously been available.

- a. The PTC for wind facilities expires at the end of 2019, although the credit rate began to phase down starting in 2017.
- b. During the House Ways and Means Committee markup Representative Doggett offered an amendment, which was passed by voice vote, to strike the production credit for Indian coal facilities.
- c. Qualified film, television, and live theatrical productions are eligible for the additional first-year depreciation allowance under § 168(k) if (1) acquired and placed in service after September 27, 2017, and before January 1, 2027; and (2) a deduction otherwise would have been allowable under § 181 without regard to the dollar limitation or termination of that section. See IRC § 168(k)(2)(A)(i)(IV) and (V).
- d. The empowerment zone tax incentives may have expired earlier than December 31, 2017, if a state or local government provided an expiration date in the nomination of an empowerment zone, or the appropriate Secretary revoked an empowerment zone's designation. The state or local government may, however, amend the nomination to provide a new termination date.

Other Resources

There are other resources that might be useful when considering the issue of “tax extenders” or “tax extenders” legislation. These include the following:

- Joint Committee on Taxation (JCT), Federal Tax Provisions Expired In 2017 And 2018 And Expiring In 2019, JCX-8-19, March 8, 2019.
  - This document provides a brief description of expired and expiring provisions. The dates when the provision was initially enacted, substantially modified, and most recently extended are also noted.
- Joint Committee on Taxation (JCT), Description Of H.R. 3301, The “Taxpayer Certainty And Disaster Tax Relief Act Of 2019,” JCX-30-19, June 18, 2019; and JCT, Estimated Revenue Effects Of H.R. 3301, The “Taxpayer Certainty And Disaster Tax Relief Act Of 2019,” Scheduled For Markup By The Committee On Ways And Means On June 20, 2019, JCX-31-19, June 18, 2019.
  - These documents describe and provide revenue estimates for the Taxpayer Certainty and Disaster Relief Act of 2019 (H.R. 3301).
- Congressional Budget Office (CBO), Revenue Projections by Category, August 2019 and April 2018.
  - These spreadsheets contain data on the estimated revenue effects of extending expired and expiring provisions through the end of the budget window.
